Monument Unveiled to Gas Mask Chemist

[By Chas. McCann, United Press staff correspondent.]
LONDON, Dec. 3.—A simple memorial has been unveiled here to the man who, next to the Kaiser, was cursed during the war by more millions of sweating soldiers than any other man in Europe—and whom millions more, gasping in a cloud of poison gas, have had cause to bless.
The memorial, unveiled in the examination hall of the Pharmaceutical Society, is to Lieutenant Colonel E. F. Harrison, inventor of the box-respirator or gas mask of which over 20,000,000 were manufactured for British and American soldiers, and which almost any soldier who has seen active service will say saved his life.

Out All Night Without Result

In Case of Disagreement Second Trial Will Probably Follow

[By United Press]
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3.—A disagreement of the Arbuckle jury loomed today, after seven unsuccessful ballots for a verdict, ending at 11 o'clock last night. The balloting was to be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning. It was reported the last ballot last evening stood 11 to 1 for acquittal.

Jury May Be Held Over Sunday
[By United Press]
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3.—Refreshed by a night's sleep in a hotel under guard of a squad of bailiffs, the Arbuckle jury convened again at the Hall of Justice at 10 o'clock this morning.

At 10:15 the jury had been out eighteen hours and was reported to have taken twelve ballots. Rumors varied as to the result of the balloting, some giving 9 to 3, others 11 to 1 for acquittal. Many expect a verdict today, but the majority are talking about a disagreement and a new trial. Those close to the judge believe he will not discharge the jury as long as there is a chance of an agreement being reached, it is thought he would hold the jury in session over Sunday if necessary. "Even though a disagreement results it will be a moral victory, if the majority is for acquittal," the defense stated this morning. At 11 o'clock there was still no verdict.

A PASSING REVIEW

BY THE NOTATOR

During the week Senator Oddie flared into print defensively on his vote on the Phipps-Townsend-Dowell federal road bill, but as he makes this a personal matter between himself and former Highway Engineer Cottrell, and the latter being out of the state, and also off the Nevada pay roll, it needs no reply from the former engineer. The main contention of the junior senator of Nevada is that the retroactive feature is embraced in the bill, but according to those familiar with the bill, the roads and the retroactive feature the law as it stands is some $600,000 shy of what was anticipated. If the senator doesn't believe this feature of the bill all he has to do is to ask the Washoe commissioners who get no draw-down of retroactive money from the government on their recently constructed concrete highway between Reno and Carson. Fortunately the junior senator will have some five years to explain this matter, as his term of office covers that period. In the meantime it will take a clearer letter to the public to overcome the shortage. It was far short of a $600,000 letter to the advocates of the original bill which before Tasker was handed that amendment, by some eastern brother who slipped the package to him, included the retroactive feature which would have covered many of the roads that are now out of the rebate.

not far remote, that provision be made for a special federal attorney to help, and also the naming of another judge, both naturally would have been Democratic, but the case of the saddle did not chafe, and the boys were thrown rudely from the seating with a sudden and tremendous jar last fall, and when they came to the game was over and the other fellow was doing the riding, which simply reflects bad judgment. So much on that score.

Now a little figuring clarifies the solution. First and foremost George Springmeyer has insisted that he be named to fill the place of Billy Woodburn, while the other faction of the Republican party can't quite forgive George for his past, therefore, they have thrown a few ties across his rail, but by the creation of a special prosecutor this makes room for George and likewise the other faction. Then should it be necessary to have another judge named, who could relieve and help take up the work with Judge Farrington, you can see that it would make room for other ambitions that otherwise cannot be satisfied, and with it all it is tremendously good politics, and don't forget but there is a movement toward this plan, and if the past six weeks is any criterion it is necessary if anything but booze cases are to be tried in the federal court.

The recent federal trial jury has concluded six weeks of labor, resulting in so many convictions and fines and imprisonments that the Washoe county jail is well filled, the exchequer of the government replenished and another batch of defendants is awaiting indictment and trial. Now this all harks back to the question of the appointment of a special prosecutor for such cases, which is advocated by the present federal attorney and his deputy. During the session many a civil action languished and much money is involved in issues that are held up all on account of Mr. Volstead. The appointment as suggested sounds good, but what relief does that bring without another federal judge to help the prosecutor? One without the other does no untangle the situation, and it is confessed that the business has multiplied five-fold. Here is where the Democratic party slipped a cog. It was suggested at one time,

Japanese Alliance On Enlarged Scale

America and France Included In Latest Pacific Proposal

[By United Press]
WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Scrapping of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, the substitution of an understanding to keep the peace of the Pacific by France, Great Britain, Japan and America and the acceptance of the 5-5-3 naval ratios by Japan is understood to be the tentative agreement reached by Hughes, Balfour and Kato at yesterday's secret session. Under this substitute agreement America agrees to non-fortification of her Pacific islands. The acceptance of the plan depends mainly on the reply from Tokio to Admiral Baron Kato's secret cable. It is believed that Japan will accept. Full details are expected to develop at next week's plenary session.

Want to Keep New Ship
TOKIO, Dec. 3.—The proposed scrapping of the dreadnaught Mutsui continues to be a most important question to the Japanese, for they are tremendously proud of the new ship. According to semi-official information Japan is willing that America retain the new Mare Island to balance the Japanese of the Mutsui.

OPEN SCHOOL BIDS; NO CONTRACT LET

The school board of trustees this afternoon opened the bids for reconstruction of the school house under the approved plans of Architect Ferris of Reno. The following bids were received, read and taken under consideration: J. B. Dillard, $24,225; C. H. Sellman, $25,450; Rouse & Belz of Reno, $26,134. The plumbing bids were as follows: F. C. Savage of Reno, $1,774; Wm. Ware of Reno, $2,481; J. C. McDermitt, $2,833; Wm. Wagner, $2,900.

Pittman is as good as nominated for senator. Cole, Brodigan, Malley and Deady are going to get back into the fight for their present positions. Fowler is figuring. Bill Kennett, clerk of the supreme court, is going to run, for when pinned down he said he was pawning to go, and there appears to be no opposition in his own ranks, so you can tally that point. Maurice Sullivan still has faith in himself for the governorship, yet he has not made the announcement, as Scrugham is to be figured with if Henderson balks, while those grooming Rogers have not found him hard to curry. But candidly, the governorship fight in the Democracy is just as high in the air as is the Republican program on the senatorship, and independently Judge Sanders is out for his old job on the supreme bench, and that is the news of the week.

There is one element in the Republican ranks that has "em guessing and that is Ed Roberts. Now Roberts is going to be in the race, either for congress or senatorship, and some of the wise ones in Reno know it and it has them worried. Ed has the same old smile, has never forgotten a man, woman or child, knows them by name and politics, and he has been doing a little circulating recently. He was noted while in Carson this week and the glad hand of the old guard of the G. O. P. was extended. Just keep your eye on Roberts, he figures on a come-back and is in training.

A few things are certain Democratic.
